

Construct Like Lloyd “Hog” Mattingly!

These are buildings from Mattingly’s Lebanon Junction series, which he created in the 1980’s. He used wood, paint, glass, and glue to create his miniatures. They represent important buildings from his childhood. He created them from what he remembered or dreamed. He also left them empty, making them like a container for his or other’s memories of this Kentucky town.

Can you remember a building that is important to you?

How can you use shapes, colors, and textures to recreate that building?

- Find materials in your home that you can use to collage—old newspapers, magazines, wrapping paper, etc
- Try starting with a large rectangle or square as your base
- Use scissors to cut out shapes or objects to add to your building
- Arrange your cut-outs and glue them down
